

Luke...Covenant Theological Seminary

My partnership with SMI has been nothing less than exceptional. I know it might sound cliché, but you know something is working well in your life when you hardly notice it. This has been my experience with SMI. Month in, month out financial accountability and administration is extended through SMI, leaving me with only the extension of gratitude to ministry partners left to do.

I am also freed up immensely to pursue practical ministry opportunities with a college campus fellowship here in St. Louis. Were I to carry the load of organizing all the administrative details, there is no way I would be able to focus on my studies, let alone invest in the lives of university students.

SMI also has afforded me a flexibility few traditional job structures could match. With the inevitable ebb and flow of ministry and the craziness of having both my wife and I in school full time, flexibility is a necessity. Though SMI is unique in its scope of ministry, I am convinced it will be a tremendous blessing to anyone it serves.
